It can not only unlock your Adobe apps in the account, but also can help you customise your Adobe apps by applying your Photoshop and other creative work. On your side: 1.First: Choose what you need to do to the application. You can either use Advanced Edit mode or standard operation mode. 2.Second: Open the output path to the application. 3.Third: Choose the software that you are going to patch. 4.Fourth: input files are required. 5.Fifth: Choose the backup path. 6.Sixth: 7.Seventh: Click 'Create patch'. In the output file of the patch, there will be an application patch file, a description file, a patch file, a xip file and a folder to storage the above files. The application patch file is the file that you have to import to the Adobe product you have applied patch. For the reasons of protection, Adobe does not release the executable files (application patch file) of its application. It was so difficult to process because it is a binary executable file. The only way to use it is to apply it on the Adobe product directly. If you are not familiar with Adobe application patch, please take advantage of Adobe Expat application patch. When it comes to the free application patch file, you need to keep in mind the following: 1.The size of the patch file is very large. If you don't want to slow down the speed of the system, it is better not to use it. 2.It is not guaranteed that the application patch file will work to Adobe product. Since the patch file is a binary executable file, you need to process it. If you didn't install the correct Adobe exe file, it won't work. 3.It's better not to use it. Step 2: Then set up the APK on the application you want to edit. 4.Select the output file of the patch. Step 3: Apply patch If you want to get the application that cannot be modified, you need to apply the application patch file directly. Step 4: If the tool can't patch an Adobe product or if you cannot process the patch file, try the patch module of the Adobe software. This module is located at: $AIR/modules/AdvancedPatch 1.Click on the patch. 82157476af
